

Death rates for suicide, by sex, race, Hispanic origin, and age: United States

Author:Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

URL:<https://catalog.data.gov/dataset/death-rates-for-suicide-by-sex-race-hispanic-origin-and-age-united-states-020c1>

Description: This is a data set showing the relationship between suicide rates and race and gender. This data set is about the mental health of hispanic americans. Talks about the death rates and suicide.

As a psychology major I care a lot about mental health and the rates of suicide, this dataset is all about the mental health of people of Hispanic origin. The mental health of minorities in the united states is very important to me because sometimes they get overlooked.

INDICATOR: Death Rates for suicide this is an indicator for what they are studying

UNIT: Deaths per 100,000 resident population, age-adjusted

UNIT_NUM: The number of deaths in thousands

STUB_NAME: What this data is based on, everyone, race, sex, ect.

STUB_NAME_NUM: The amount of people that fit in these categories

STUB_LABEL: What sex and nationality the participants are

STUB_LABEL_NUM: The number of people that fit the categories of sex and race

YEAR: The year the participants were born in

YEAR_NUM: The number of people born in these years

AGE: All ages

AGE_NUM: Is present but disregarded

ESTIMATE: This is what researches estimated the death rates for these groups were

FLAG: There is no data for this entry

Curated by: Kora Eng